

VOCATIONAL COLLEGE

LUOVI

providing
VET,

supporting individuals.

Luovi offers vocational special needs education and training (VET) for young people and adults. We believe that each individual is special and deserves equal rights and opportunities in society.

Vocational education and training is provided in six fields of study:

- Culture
- Natural resources and environment
- Natural Sciences
- Social sciences, business and administration
- Technology, communication and transport
- Tourism, catering and domestic services

Luovi provides preparatory training for initial VET (VALMA) and also for work and independent living (TELMA). Luovi offers continuing VET options for adults who need support in their studies to update and develop their vocational competence.

Additionally, Luovi offers specialist services, such as training and consultation, to mainstream VET and associates.

THE LUOVI WAY TO SUPPORT

As a special needs VET provider Luovi offers comprehensive support services. Students receive guidance and counseling for their professional growth and well-being throughout their learning pathways. Luovi's staff is there for the students from the time of applying all the way through their studies. Counseling is provided to everyone to support placement on the labour market or in further studies.

Luovi co-operates closely with students' networks, such as carers and service providers.

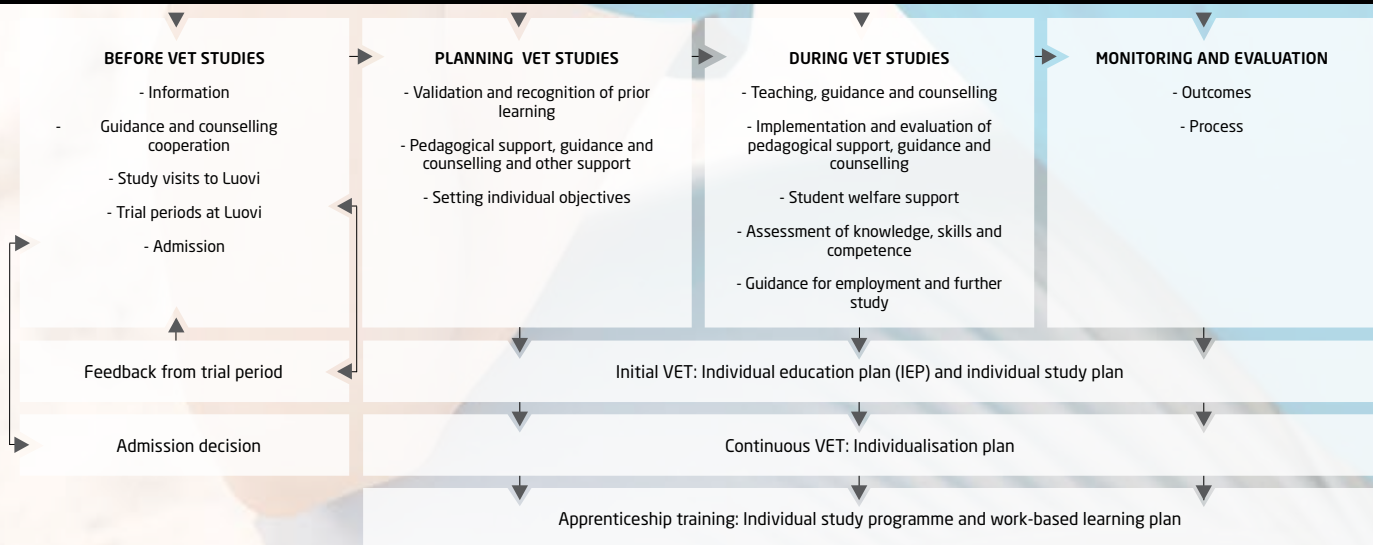

Luovi's international activities aim at bringing an international aspect to daily life. This includes support for student and staff exchange programmes, language and cultural training, receiving students and staff members abroad and international projects. Luovi supports students' mobility and internationalisation at home as part of their studies and of developing their skills and competences.
